

MOVIE NEWS & REVIEWS AUGUST 23, 2016 10:18 AM

Rolling Stones, Iggy Pop docs to screen at Miami Film Festival's Gems showcase

BY RENE RODRIGUEZ
rrodriguez@miamiherald.com

“The Rolling Stones Olé Olé Olé: A Trip Across Latin America.” a documentary about the legendary rock group’s 2016 South American tour that ended with a concert in Havana, and “Gimme Danger,” director Jim Jarmusch’s candid look at the punk-rock band The Stooges led by Iggy Pop, will screen as part of the Miami Film Festival’s 2016 GEMS showcase.

The mini-festival, which will run Oct. 13-16 at Miami Dade College's Tower Theater, is a precursor to the main 10-day festival, which will be held in March 2017.

“With the Stones’ recent historical free concert in Cuba and with Iggy Pop being a beloved resident of our city, both of these films are so eagerly awaited by Miami film and music fans that we could not contain ourselves any longer,” said Jaie Laplante, the Festival’s executive director & director of programming.

The full line-up of this year’s GEMS festival will be unveiled Sept. 15. For more information, visit www.miamifilmfestival.com

MORE MOVIE NEWS & REVIEWS

YOU MAY LIKE

Sponsored Links by Taboola

How To Fix Your Fatigue (Do This Every Day)

Gundry MD

The 'ab crack' is newest body trend to spark social media outrage

OddChatter

Television reporters charged with child abuse after their baby tested positive for cocaine

OddChatter

Former Miss Turkey sentenced to 14 months in prison for Instagram post

OddChatter