

South Florida Colleges Offer to Help Students Displaced By Hurricanes Maria and Irma

Two South Florida colleges offer help to students in Puerto Rico.

(Published Tuesday, Sept. 26, 2017)

Two South Florida colleges announced Tuesday they will help college students in Puerto Rico displaced by Hurricanes Maria and Irma.

Miami-Dade College will offer in-state tuition to affected students in Puerto Rico. The school said other services for displaced students will be announced soon.

St. Thomas University is also offering a lending hand. The university will provide free room and board through Spring 2018 for up to 100 college students in Puerto Rico and other Caribbean islands impacted by Hurricanes Irma and Maria.

Students will receive the free room and board on a first-come, first-serve basis upon continuing their studies at STU. The school will also include a free meal plan for the first 100 students enrolled in the program.

President Trump to Visit Puerto Rico

[NATL] President Trump to Visit Puerto Rico

President Donald Trump will visit Puerto Rico on Tuesday to view the hurricane damage personally. Trump talked about the rescue and recovery efforts, and the challenges presented due to the island's location.

(Published 3 hours ago)

“We are committed to helping college students who were affected by the storms continue their education with as much ease and comfort as possible,” said Monsignor Franklyn Casale, President of STU.

To apply, interested students should call the STU Registrar's Office at 305-628-6612 or go to www.stu.edu/support.

Published at 11:28 PM EDT on Sep 26, 2017 | Updated at 11:31 PM EDT on Sep 26, 2017

Get the latest from NBC 6 anywhere, anytime

Download the App

Available for IOS and Android

- Follow NBC 6

Click here for full coverage of the aftermath of Hurricane Irma.

Find this article at:

<http://www.nbcmiami.com/news/local/South-Florida-Colleges-Offer-to-Help-Students-Displaced-By-Maria-and-Irma-448110253.html>

Check the box to include the list of links referenced in the article.

© NBC Universal, Inc. | All Rights Reserved.